NetLibrary: the Library Comes to a Computer Near You

Need to do some research, but the Library's closed? Maybe it's just raining too hard, and you don't want to get wet. No problem. The CGTC Library subscribes to NetLibrary, a collection of electronic books available over the Internet. Our e-book collection has nearly 39,000 titles and is constantly growing. From classic novels to reading ECG traces, it's all here.

NetLibrary titles are listed in our catalog for convenience and easy access. You can tell which titles are electronic books by the words "[electronic resource]" or "[computer file]" beside the title. From any computer on any CGTC campus or center, click on the title to open the detail record, then click on the link in the Notes field. The e-book will open, ready for you to use.

The easiest way to get to NetLibrary from off-campus is to go through GALILEO. You will need the current GALILEO password (see sidebar). Click on the Databases A-Z tab, scroll down and click on NetLibrary. This procedure lets NetLibrary know that you are associated with CGTC so you can have access to our custom collection. Alternatively, you can use any computer at any CGTC campus or center to get a free user account. Go to <http://www.netlibrary.com/> and click on "Get a Free Account" at the upper right of the page. Once you have the account, you can use NetLibrary from any computer with Internet access.

The GALILEO password for off-campus access changes every quarter. For legal reasons, we cannot give the password out over the phone.

Just come by the Library or e-mail library@centralgatech.edu with your name and Student ID number and we will be glad to give it to you.

NetLibrary rocks! We encourage you to explore the great books it has to offer. As always, the Library would love to hear from you about this or anything else.

EXTRA! EXTRA!

The Library now has an online feedback form for your convenience! Please visit the Library's Web page at www.centralgatech.edu/library and give us your opinions and suggestions. All input is completely anonymous and extremely valuable to us. Thanks for all your help!

WELCOME !!!

Please help us welcome our new Library Technical Assistants: Lyn Young during the day, and Audra George in the evenings. We are lucky to have such capable and knowledgeable staff members.

Have a Wonderful Fall !

The CGTC Library Staff are ready to assist you with all your informational needs. Please feel free to come by, phone, or e-mail (library@centralgatech.edu) us with your questions and requests.
